"Now every one may see at a glance that here is a word which has no possible precise legal meaning. The result must be either that cities will, because of doubt, submit every proposed charter amendment to the Legislature, or will act without such submission and await the determination of their right to do so at the hands of the courts. It is apparent to my mind that under this scheme neither charters nor amendments; of importance can be adopted by cities without the interference of the Legislature should the Legislature desire to interfere.

"The committee appear to have attempted to give home rule to cities and in the same breath to take it away. It requires 16 special acumen to understand that power over local affairs and government cannow be retained in the hands of the Legislature and at the same time conferred upon the munhicipalities of the State.
